

MORNING APPEAL.

Thursday.....February 24th 1887.

THE LOTTERY IN CALIFORNIA.

The California Legislature realizing how serious is the drain of money from the Golden State into Louisiana have introduced a bill authorizing a lottery. The leading papers of the State think a lottery a necessity and the papers who think it an evil unblushingly violate the present lottery law by publishing official advertisements of the drawings for which they charge the lottery management large sums of money. The Gilroy Record says:

Quite a number of journals in California alive to the fact that a large amount of money is every month expended in lottery tickets and sent out of the State, are advocating a State lottery, the profits of which shall be devoted to the support of schools or charitable institutions. As the law now stands, beyond an occasional arrest and seizure of lottery coupons, the law against the sale of these tickets is a dead letter. The large San Francisco dailies publish the drawings as paid advertising matter. Articles paid for at so much per line with illustrations of the mode of drawing, style of ticket, etc., appear in their columns. They do not advertise the drawings to come, but those which have been made. These answer all the purposes intended by the astute managers of the lottery. The papers of the Wednesday following the Tuesday drawing of the lottery, is the most eagerly sought for paper of the week, as it contains the telegraphic announcement of the numbers which have drawn the big prizes. Unless this large expenditure of money for this purpose can be stopped (and it cannot be) it would be better were it retained in the State by a similar scheme legalized by the Government. It has been estimated that between one and two million dollars are annually spent in California for Louisiana lottery tickets. There is not a small town nor a large one, in the whole State where they are not as openly sold as would be so much stationery, groceries or dry goods. By all means let us have a license of all things which experience has taught us cannot be prohibited by law; which punishment does not deter from dealing in. If a California Judge and jury were called upon to try a vendor of lottery tickets, the probability would be, that in the pockets of the 12 good men and true, would be found a coupon for the next drawing. The Judge and counsel would be in the same fix.

THE ROBES OF HYPOCRACY.

The Enterprise is now assuming the role of the moral conservator of Nevada. This paper has flourished and grown fat off the stock gambling craze and today its columns are filled with assessments advertisement which tell of the condition of the mining gamble. The managers of the Enterprise know perfectly well that these column notifications to the clerks, chambermaids and sewing women of San Francisco, to pay up delinquent assessments on stock, in many instances, relates to holes in the ground where not a pound of ore exists. The Enterprise knows that much of the money wrung from these people under false pretenses will not go into mining development but into the pockets of a few sharpers who will scatter the proceeds in riotous debauchery, yet it unblushingly lends its columns to these schemes of fraud for so much per line, gold coin, and, while raking in the dollars lifts its pious voice against lottery gambling. This paper has grown up on a gambling soil, and its roots go down deep into this old historic ground which for years has been fertilized with bogus deals, false points and thieving stock raids on the pockets of the poor dupes who trust their money to the sharks of Pine street, but the little lottery gamble where the investors confine themselves to a chance of one dollar per month excites its righteous indignation. We advise our Comstock contemporary to take a careful survey of its own picture in the glass.

The Tahoe Scheme.
Senator Boyle will, in a few days, introduce a bill asking the State to appropriate $250,000 as a basis for a capital of $1,000,000, over one-quarter of which he says he can command in one hour after the bill becomes a law. The object of the law is to drive a tunnel four miles in length for the purpose of tapping Lake Tahoe. He says they will have all the water they want by securing even what is running to waste, to supply all the contiguous valleys for agriculture and manufacturing purposes, as the pressure will be over 1,500 feet above the highest point of Carson. This will place Carson on a footing with Reno and give Nevada two prosperous manufacturing cities instead of one should the measure become a law.

Assemblyman Logan says that the tunnel need never reach the Lake for if driven in two thousand feet it would encounter several thousand inches of water. The California papers object to the scheme on the ground that it would diminish the water supply of the Truckee. Mr. Boyle has no such idea. He proposes to raise the dam at Tahoe City three feet and the extra water obtained by this would give the tunnel 150,000 inches without loss to California. The tunnel would also tap water supplies this side of Tahoe. It is a good project and ought to be carried out.

Legislative Scandal.
There is a lively rumour at Sacramento over the revelations of a Clerk who claims that he had been offered money to advance bills on the file and alter the wording of bills. He exhibits letters from various members to prove his assertions. While the California papers are calling us the "Rotten Borough" our own Legislature is going quietly along without any trouble or bad smelling scandals.
